Calabash. A Journal of Caribbean Arts and Letters.

An international literary journal published in New York, (New York University, N.Y. USA).

ASSOCIATE EDITOR since 2000.

HEAD - BOOK REVIEWS SECTION since 2007

Years 2000, 2001, 2002, paper version; since 2003 an on-line journal at:

<http://library.nyu.edu/calabash>

The journal, whose Advisory Board includes, among others, writers such as George Lamming, Kamau Brathwaite, Wilson Harris and Paule Marshall, publishes critical essays, original and new works by well known writers, as well as works by budding artists; it also publishes photographs and contributions by visual artists. The journal's goal is to place writers from Anglophone, Francophone, Hispanophone and Dutch-speaking Caribbean communities "in dialogue among themselves, as well as with their migrant, immigrant, and expatriate counterparts. The journal also provides coverage of critical engagement by and among scholars from literary, artistic, and cultural traditions in and on the Caribbean".

The editorial work includes selecting manuscripts for publications, writing reviews and interviews.
